Overview

The Voice is a unique instrument. While many instruments study technique through strumming, training the embouchure and changing mouthpieces or reeds, the voice is controlled through body awareness, healthy practices, vocal technique and knowledge.

Through this program, you will learn effective practice habits to keep track of your own vocal progression; to utilize the breath; to fill the mask and to use appropriate placement, projection and other vocal techniques that will put you on the path to sustain vocal longevity during your journey as an artist and to prevent vocal injuries.

Singing with an amazing and distinctive tone is important but taking care of your voice leads to a steady path to achieving your full potential. The Oakdale Vocal Training Program will help you reach it.
